

Hereditary King of the Irish Nation on Involuntary Fast

Professor Brian G. Mc Enery who today revealed that he was the Hereditary King of the Irish Nation during his announcement of his dominion over his newly declared Kingdom of the Irish Nation, has now gone on to say that he has been placed on an involuntary fast by the callous disregard of the Government of Ireland, and the Institutions supported by the Irish State. He had used up all his resources during his five month tour of Ireland to garnish support for his desire to establish an educational institution with the ability to teach his approach to knowledge. The government with willfull disreagard for his wellbeing allowed him to hope that his twenty one year journey would finally be at an end, and at last he would be able to earn a living with honour and dignity. They were fully well aware that his resources were dwindling, and dangled fake promises.

Then after the budget they decided not to interact with Professor Mc Enery again, as he had exposed a deep flaw within the legal system in Ireland, by showing two examples of how the Constitution of Ireland was invalidated. The first of these relates to a Quantum Temporal Singularity introduced into the Constitution of Ireland as a result of the ratification of the Good Friday Agreement. The second relates to an unlawful refferendum in August 2012. Professor Mc Enery can only speculate on why the Government of Ireland have acted in the way they have, but every contact ever since has largely been ignored despite Professor Mc Enery appealing directly to the Taoiseach. Recently he sent a message to every member of the Dáil and Seanad and that message too was ignored. He was appealing not only to rescue his educational project but also to rescue his personal situation. During the last 21 years Professor Mc Enery has only been able to earn a total of €84. He has been denied his rights under Article 45.2.1 of the Constitution of Ireland, all because he took an ethical stand against the Biotechnology Industry, by launching the Campaign to Ban Genetically Modified Foods in Ireland. He has invested what little savings he had into keeping his project going.

The end result now is that Professor Mc Enery has no funds, and within a day or so will also be homeless. He has not had a decent meal for the last three weeks.

Special Message from Professor Brian G. Mc Enery

Hi there,

I am most grateful that you have taken the time to read this press release and message. Let me assure you that this is no scam operation. I genuinely need assistance, not only for my immediate personal needs but also for my project. At present I am in a hostel in West-Kerry and owe a weeks rent, €105. I have not had any proper food this week. Just living on some muesli, and con flakes and coffee. It's not just that, but my project is in danger of foundering. I need some cash to get it started properly. I was nearly caught in a credit insurance scam yesterday, as someone spotted a vulnerable person. If anyone can point me in the direction of some cash then I will be most grateful. If some individual or business would like to sponsor my work for a few months, by giving me three thousand per month then I will graciously accept the offer. To say I'm desperate is putting it too politely. I have absolutely nothing. The Celtic Tiger is alive and well and wants to devour me, it's most loyal son.

I am putting my bank account here, in case anyone wishes to make a lodgement. If you do, please email me so that I can acknowledge your assistance and send you an electronic copy of the first of seven poetry books I wrote between 3rd August and 20th November this year.

If anyone can have a word in the Government's ear, please demand that they give me an opportunity to show them what I can do.

I have no other cards to play. My hand is empty.

Thank you,

Brian.
